Dedication

To My Parents — Thank you, Arthur & Lakeisha Jackson for your love, your encouragement, and your late-night pep talks.

I couldn't have done this without you.

You are the real MVPs behind the scenes, who gave me enough space to dream big.

Dear Reader,

What happens when your dream school becomes the place where you lose your best friend?

In Enough Space: Losing Friends, Finding Me, you'll meet Katie — a thrift-loving, big-hearted girl who just graduated 8th grade and is headed to a fancy boarding school in Paris. Sounds perfect, right? Especially when her best friend Lauren is going too.

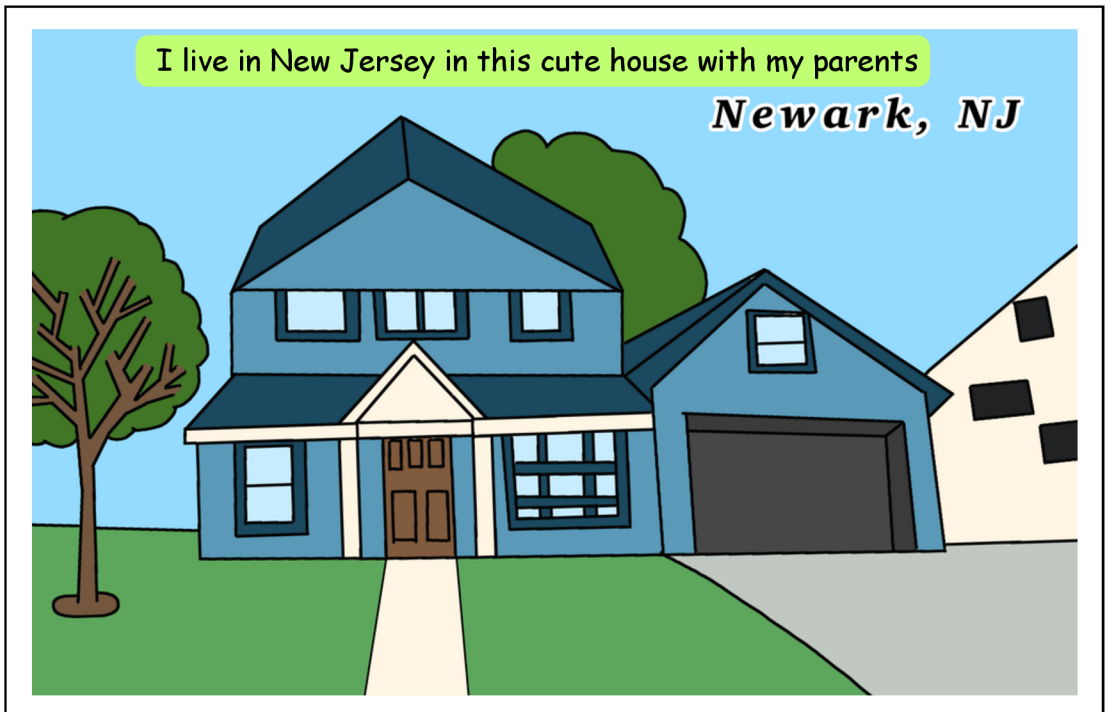

But sometimes, growing up means growing apart.

I created this story — every word, every drawing — to show that friendship breakups can hurt just as much as any other kind. But healing, growth, and real connection still exist on the other side.

This comic is for every girl who's ever felt out of place, left behind, or not "fancy enough." You are more than enough.

Thank you for being part of Katie's journey — and mine.

With love,
Imena Dreams

Mom is a veterinarian

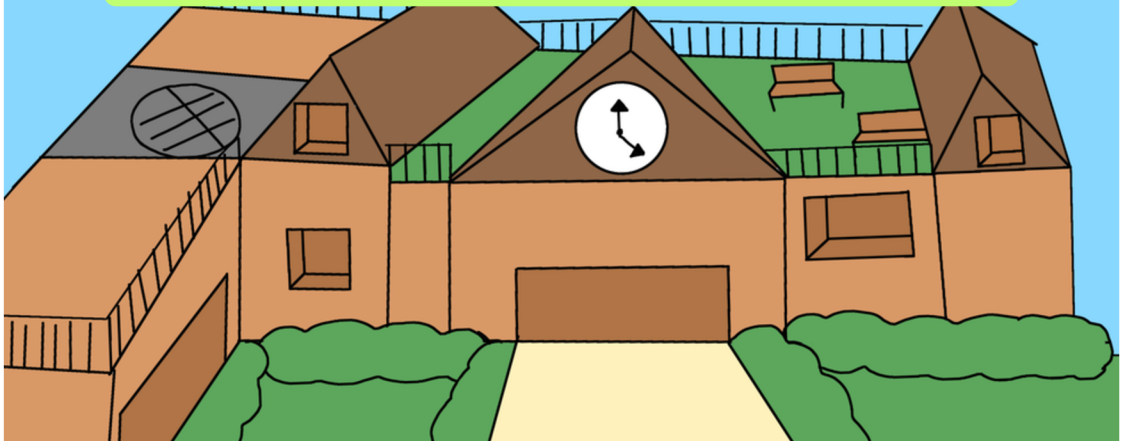

Dad works in the office with his hot head boss

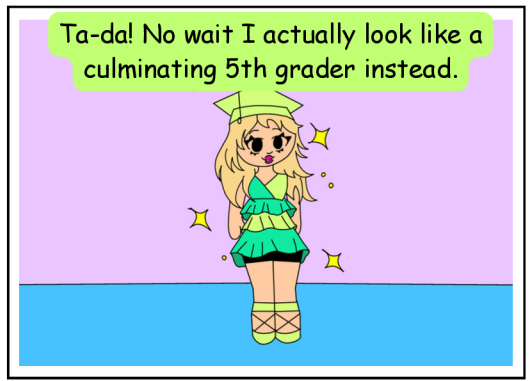

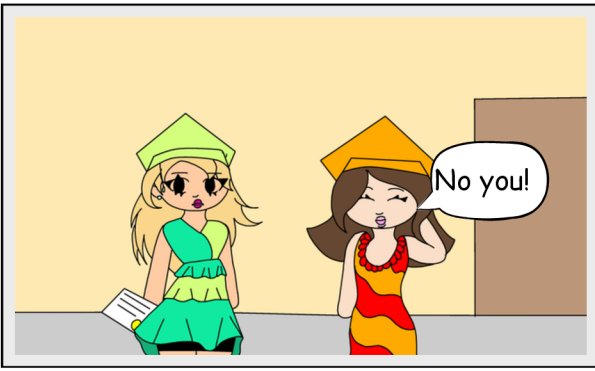

And I'm Katie. I'm into fashion, baking, and THRIFTING

And I'm so grateful because I'm going to this fancy private school where a lot of the rich kids go to. Except I'm not rich. I have a scholarship.

well, it's leaving day. Meaning I won't see my parents for a while.

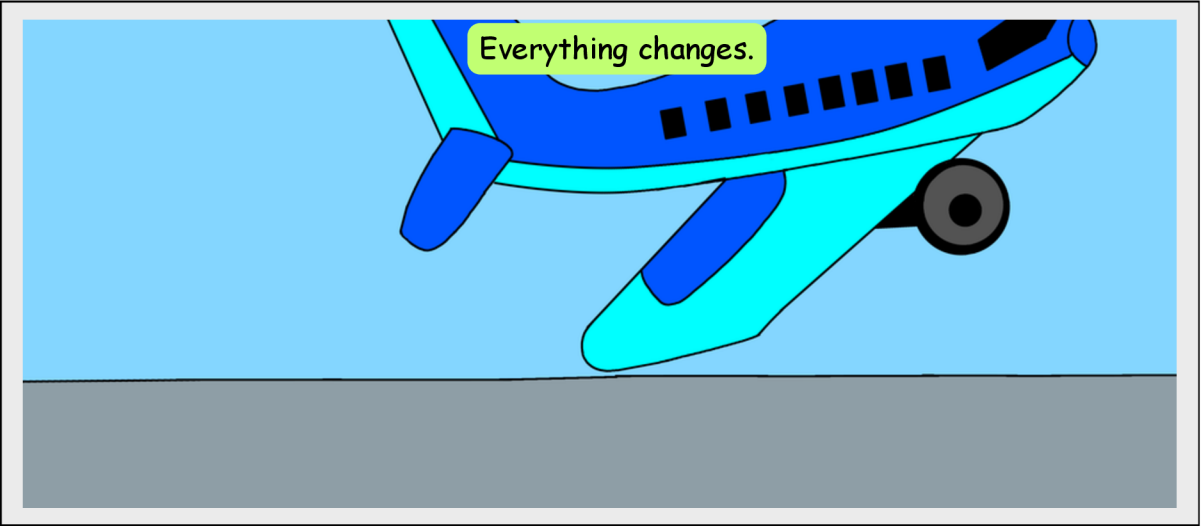

At the airport

call us everyday,
and if you don't we will.

A NEW SCHOOL. A NEW CITY. A NEW CHAPTER.

Katie and her best friend are about to begin an exciting new adventure at a boarding high school in Paris. But when they arrive, things don't go as Katie expected.

As her best friend begins to change and their friendship is put to the test, Katie finds herself feeling alone in a place far from home.

Will she find where she belongs?

Join Katie as she navigates friendship, self-discovery, and the challenges of fitting in while building unexpected connections along the way.

The story is just getting started...
